GOSSIP OF THE TURF.

The turf world is figuring over Hamburg's owner. I think that either W. L. Powers, for himself, or Marcus Daly and John B. Haggin, own him. Mr. Whitney says he doesn't. He is a gentleman and doesn't tell lies. Mr. Powers is a keen, high-class man. He is a general turf expert in Eastern fields, cares for Mr. Haggin's and Mr. Daly's forfeits and is able to buy such a horse as Hamburg—for himself if needs be. He paid more than $40,000 and less than $42,000 for Hamburg—not $60,000, as reported. I should not be surprised to hear that his purchase was for Marcus Daly, for whom Hamburg's dam—Lady Reel—was bought. Mr. Daly was in Chicago over Sunday. He and his racing manager, Ed A. Tipton, met by appointment at the Auditorium. Both left Chicago Sunday night. Mr. Daly to spend Christmas with his charming wife and his three daughters and son—all of whom are at school in the East. Tipton's a keen fellow. "I buy and sell for myself," said he. "Haven't I a right to do so? Lady Reel was bought for Mr. Daly. I know nothing about Hamburg's purchase." Mr. Daly had nothing to say about Hamburg.

It is certain that no trotting races will be put upon the Montana programs of 1898. Some five or six new stakes for two-year-olds, the majority of them for fillies, will be added to the seventeen already offered for the Butte, Mont., July 2 to August 6, and Anaconda, Mont., August 11, to Sept. 10, meetings, entries to which close in April.

The Cincinnati Commercial-Tribune declares that the Applegate syndicate has no chance to, and does not own nor control more than 700 of the 2000 shares of the Cincinnati Jockey Club and offers this argument in support:

"For the benefit of those who have always had an idea that the Oakley track is controlled from Louisville, the list of its principal stockholders and their holdings is here published. The list covers 1560 of the 2000 shares of stock, and includes every stockholder who owns more than a single share of stock. There are 440 shares held by men who are stockholders only for the purpose of obtaining a member's badge at the meetings:

Owners.	Shares.
W. E. Applegate	400
H. M. Zeigler	200
M. Simonton	200
Charles Bollinger	200
A. S. Labold	160
F. H. Kirchner	100
George R. Griffiths	100
Estate of Charles Fleischmann	100
Carey Applegate	50
Charles (Riley) Grannan	50

The Louisville contingent controls the shares of the Applegates and Riley Grannan—500 shares. Even assuming that the Bollinger interest would vote with them, they have but 700 out of the 2000 shares, and the proxies of the single shareholders would always be voted with the Cincinnati interests, as they are largely held in this city."

What of the other 440 shares? Are they out? And the Zeigler, Simonton interest? Where is it placed, on sharp issues? An observer, with an eye trailed on the course of the gun of action, might well consider that the Cincinnati critic might have more deeply probed.

The same critic, going to general western racing and the broad bearing thereof as applied to losses, gains and action upon one of its important sides—the ring—writes:

"The plaint is heard from every track that there is an absence of bookmakers. This in spite of the fact that the business is profitable. An old retired layer of odds explained the why and wherefore one day last summer:

"The big fish have eaten the little fish," said he. "In bookmaking, as in most of the commercial pursuits, combinations and trusts have absorbed everything. The moment an independent bookmaker goes into the ring he is singled out as legitimate prey. The syndicate fellows will wait until they have a 'good thing' and then they will put a crimp in the percentage bookmaker's bank roll which will make him have bad dreams that night.

"They have literally driven the old-style percentage bookmakers off the block.

"And when one reviews only the past season one can see that this is so. Leo Mayer, shrewd bookmaker that he is, was forced to quit the game here, albeit he made some killings of his own, when his form figures proved more reliable than the stable information upon which syndicate men were depending. But they gave Mayer more than he could stand eventually.

"Then there was Charles Walters, of the firm of Walters & Hayden. When Mike Dwyer was here in '96 Walters was the only man in the ring who would handle his money. He would take thousands as freely as the other bookmakers would take hundreds and tens. What did the combination do to Walters last season? Only about $5,000 per day until he threw up his hands and went to St. Louis, where there is a syndicate labeled Ulman. Go to Detroit and it's Cartwright, and it's Cartwright at Nashville.

"It is an unfortunate condition, but it exists, and it is ruining the Western turf."

This is all fairly well put—from a Cincinnati point of view. But that point is local, narrow and misrepresentative as applied to the broad land from Detroit to New Orleans and from Chicago to San Francisco. The "old retired layer" is out of line on statement. "Old retired layers" usually are. The march of events catch and pass them. They lose—steadily—and charge their failure to conditions, as bad mechanics blame their tools. That's the "bull con" of ancient inability to hold its own with modern "johnny-on-the-spotism." It is true that too much Appiegatism has not benefited the Ohio-Kentucky tracks. The same complaint hurt Indiana track health last fall. Cartwrightism has borne unhealthily on the Nashville and Detroit fields. Then the Ulman shriek about St. Louis is out of date—a year too late. The "old retired layer" is "passe." But this is a mere checking of facts.

The "old retired layer" is more narrow than incorrect. The speculative side of the western turf controls part of the western turf merely because that part of the western turf—seeking to overdo its natural financial action—sur-rendered its privileges and sought fiscal safety in alliance with speculative syndicates. The Ohio-Kentucky field has been more keenly overdone than any in any country. Its racing has been framed for a clientele of a million and a half of people. No region has stood the test more bravely. St. Louis has been as sharply tested and has borne the test as well. The 1897 revenue reduction of both sections was natural contribution to Chicago—the racing field of which was virtually fallow in 1895 and 1896. Chicago's normal turf capacity, as compared with the Ohio-Kentucky and St. Louis fields, is about 3 to 1. The reason therefore for the 1897 sterility of the Ohio-Kentucky and St. Louis fields was in seeking to force them above their capacity. The Ohio-Kentucky field is able to yield well under the ninety-day call. St. Louis seems to have about a sixty-day capacity. Chicago's natural apportionment appears to be about 150 days. The best of these figures can be applied through the avenues of general business and population. No local narrowness of vision affects the writer.

The plans of the Ohio-Kentucky racing field managers promise well for 1898. Oakley is scheduled to open Saturday, May 21, to run nineteen days. Latonia and Newport are considered as having the same capacity for early racing seasons and each is likely to have about fifteen days for late summer and fall meetings. In all this will give the field 105 days racing; more than enough. Early and late meetings of fifteen days for each would be more in touch with capacity.

Time, 24, 49, 1:02.

Winner—B. c, by Clieleden or Dariwell—Ira.

Start good. Won after a long hard drive by the entire field. Iraden was best, but did not outclass his company. He was well ridden, likes fast going and was lucky. Brambella was not well handled and closed in stout fashion. Watch Alice. She was poorly handled and made up much ground. Al Gorta is only a sprinter and was used into submission as a pacemaker with Boadicea. Blazes favors soft going and was short.

Changes in Weights—Queen Blazes, 5 pounds.

Time, 24, 49, 1:02; 1:15, 1:27.

Winner—Ch. g, 3, by Kalligrates—Paradox.

Start straggling. Won easily. Myth was far the best and the best ridden. Fortunate ran as if short. He favors a route. So does B & W, who also sharply inclines to mellow going. Song and Dance is a rogue. Watch him though. He is ready and likes a route and a fast track best. He was off badly. Cerillos was outclassed.

Scratched—Miss Ross, 108; Yankee Doodle, 111.

Time, 24, 50, 1:02; 1:15, 1:40, 1:46.

Winner—Ch. c, by Salvador—Oran.

Start good. Won in a hard drive. Salvado is a good colt. He ran as if he outclassed his company. Was interfered with on first turn and back stretch and none too well ridden. Bernardillo ran an honest race. He is not in the habit of so doing. Osric closed strong. He and Clarencio were outclassed.

Time, 24, 36, 49, 1:01; 1:13.

Winner—Ch. g, by St. Carlo—Santa Cruz.

Start good. Won in a hard drive. Cuthbert was perhaps the best. He was lucky and well ridden. The gelding is but a sprinter, though. Torsida would have got him in twenty strides more. She was unlucky, ran a grand race and is as game as a thoroughbred bulldog. Jones was hampered on first turn, is game and will perform best over a distance. Venado is improving and favors fast going. He is ready, and was sharply shut off on first turn. Donator, Castake and Imperious were outclassed. Watch Castake still in heavy going. Donator is only of moderate account on a fast track and at a route. He ran his race.

3322 FIFTH RACE—5-8 Mile. Purse $400. 2-year-olds. Selling.

Time, 24, 36, 48, 1:01.

Winner—B. f, by St. Carlo—Wildflower.

Start good. Won in a hard drive of three. The Lily outclassed her lot as it ran. Was shut off at start and far from well ridden. Morinel was lucky, is best in mud and favors a distance. Ashley was poorly handled and will run best over fast footing. Little T G and the Maid were short and both eased up at the end. T G is a sprinter and ready among her own. Darechota seems to favor a route. So does Ione. Toto and Kaiserin appear to be of no present account.

NOTES OF THE TURF.

The California Jockey Club has ruled off Sandy McNaughton, late of McNaughton & Muir and another adviser, William Brown, for touting, too keenly, a San Francisco doctor, Williamson by name. The doctor bet $50 on Garland Barr, through McNaughton and Brown. They claim that he bet a large amount himself and would not allow them anything for the information that caused him to do so.

For fighting in the New Orleans paddock J. R. Bagley, owner of John Boone and other horses, and Ed Risely, a trainer, have been expelled from the grounds of the Crescent City Jockey Club, and Bagley was ordered to remove his horses.

The Little Rock Jockey Club has elected the following officials: President, S. M. Apperson; treasurer, Oscar Davis; directors, J. H. Mc Carthy, John M. Gracie, S. M. Apperson, Oscar Davis, H. C. Bateman, P. C. Dooley and E. W. Kimbell.

Hereafter the rulings of Judges Murphy and Wilson of Ingleside are to be reviewed, if disputed, by a board of five stewards made up of M. J. Tarpey, Joseph Cairn Simpson, Ed Corrigan, W. S. Hobart and J. M. Murphy.

It seems as if Senator Bland's 1½ mile race at Oakland in the mud against Satsuma Nov. 24 in 2:08½, dulled him. He is not an extra good mud horse and the effort was a supreme one.

The Swain is in California with an awful bad near fore leg which threatens to hang him up for a long time.

Masero was short and poorly handled. He closed stoutly. Argentina was best, was shut off at start and on first turn. She was closing at the finish. Midas was still short. He is a sprinter and was much used in pacemaking. Santuzza, Mollie and Coda were outclassed.
